HARVEY: Pardon my manners... dinner conversation with “Lola” on “The Haves and The Have-Nots” show Pardon my manners... dinner conversation with “Lola” on “The Haves and The Have-Nots” show Tonight I had the honor of having dinner and an in-depth conversation with a long time friend of mine that I have known since high school. He asked that I not publish his identity because he fears where this could take this discussion. Lola is black and we talk about how things are getting better and not as bad as some of us think... *When asked about private equity ownership, her biggest concern is “the people” and the companies they own – not the bottom line of the company. *Her biggest complaint about being a black woman is the pettiness... it’s almost like the black community is ungrateful of the opportunities they have been given that most white folks don’t have... like she is is a major black person/community member in Atlanta. *She believes that the biggest mistake Americans are making is judging the poor black man who has given up... she reminds me of someone I went to high school with who got a job working for a major corporation and “had” to make $60k. *While Lola grew up in Atlanta, her family grew up in Baltimore and they speak a very different dialect than I’m used to... I laughed a lot at her recent stand up comedy routine but mostly at how her examples were very close to my own experiences. Like this: LikeLoading... Q: How do I migrate node_modules from multiple directories into one file in my current project? I'm using webpack to create a common module for my project. There are two sibling directories - one for React and one for Vue components. The files in the two sibling directories are related so I can't run npm install vue react to pull in my dependencies. What do I need to do to get the "common" file pulled down into my current project? I found this question on SO, but this doesn't appear to apply to webpack. For the most part, any solution given to do with rolling back commonjs is not applicable to webpack. A: You could use something like this inside your webpack config: resolve: { alias: { Vue: path.join(__dirname, '../././Vue', 'dist/vue.common.js'), React: path.join(__dirname, '../././React', 'dist/react.common.js') }, extensions: ['.js'] } This will resolve the paths to the common modules that you want into the build. Depending on how you set up your relative project paths, the path.join inside of the alias will differ. path, outlist, &d); if (r = SIGNATURE_HEADER_VERSION_100) { fprintf(out, "Error: unsupported header version "); return; } switch (d.version) { case 1: fprintf(out, "Version 1 "); break; case 2: fprintf(out, "Version 2 "); break; case 3
