Think about the joy and gratification, happiness that comes from working, but find that you don't have enough time to do the things you want. There is a way to work and be happy, it's called Homework Club. Homework Club is the choice for K-12's. The inventive idea of this homework club is very simple. Groups of students (grades 3-9) are paired, the teacher selected a date, and each student is given an opportunity to work on homework every night. Each week before the school day begins a new homework assignment is posted to the website for student to complete on their own time. Students can work on homework as much or as little as they like. Scheduling is optional for the teacher to do at their convenience. Some students choose a daily schedule and others simply do their homework when the time allows. It is really up to each individual student and the teacher. Homework is broken down into two categories: School Work & Free Work. School Work must be completed each night at the scheduled times. The homework is assigned and collected each morning. This "homework club" provides an extra opportunity for students to get through their homework and to increase their study skills. Free Work is work that may be completed at any time, and it is entirely up to the student. It may be worked on during free time or at the end of a class period. There is no start time for Free Work and there may be times when the student has no free time. There is no burden placed on the teacher and assignment of the homework is completely at the discretion of the student and the teacher. The homework is collected at the end of the homework club session. It's Time for Adults to Stand Up and Be Heard "There are 60 million people who cannot go to work; 61 million people who are unemployed. That means one in every four workers is unemployed. In America alone there are 30 million people who are out of work and as many as 20 million more people are not working and we don't know it." Diane Limoli That is the reality of the United States. In 2012, real income growth for the bottom 20 percent of households was the same as growth for the top 5 percent of households. In 2012, median real household income was $51,017, which is a positive growth of $1301. The average real income growth for the bottom 20 percent of a69d392a70
