In the Lands Between, which has already changed from the era of man to that of the Elden, a great war occurred and caused the destruction of the world. The surviving people wandered and sought refuge on the moon. Seventy years later, a journey of redemption was begun. In the Ten Thousand Province, a pillar of light emerged from the remnants of the world, and a maiden named Pearl rose from its light. At the request of Pearl, the Elden People are helping in the eternal struggle against the dark forces of the world. For the nations, wayward souls who wish to join the struggle, and the people who wish to live in peace, there is a great war to be fought, a war that will decide the fate of the world. VANCY VANCY x XESWARD I - 5/5 (Mabi) "I always wanted to play a role-playing game where I can directly transform into a badass warrior..." Wow I haven't heard this kind of phrase in a long time, I almost want to say the word "epic"! The new RPG genre that is completely different from other RPGs is coming out to Japan. The game contains new action RPG elements and enhances a fantasy atmosphere that feels like a classic RPG. I will give all of my time to this new RPG and I recommend it to all Action RPG fans. "An incredible action RPG that will completely turn your expectations upside down." The story is really epic and it really blows me away. The game has a multilayered story and I feel sad when the story comes to an end. I felt a sense of loss because it was all over. There are many different types of gameplay that I never felt before. The game has a unique action RPG atmosphere but it is also full of fantasy. The game made me laugh and cry a lot and I was surprised by the degree to which the character "fades". The game feels different because it is a new genre of RPG but it has elements that are reminiscent of the past. When I played the game I was always thinking about the past. This game is something that we cannot find in other games. This is a game that has many great elements, it seems like it's a game that's aiming for a completely different direction from other games. The following are not included in this review. Advent Quest: "I was thinking about being late for work when I saw the new game, but I stopped in my tracks with astonishment." This is a game that was released several days ago and it has already gained attention. The game starts from the time when the main character is a character that is in a slump in life. I don't know how many people are struggling in their lives but the protagonist seems to be a gamer who is in a slump. I was thinking about being late for work when I saw the game, but I stopped in my tracks with astonishment. What was I supposed to do? The game has a lot of action but the story is also interesting. If you play this game, bff6bb2d33

Q: Typeorify all objects to a common type I have objects of type A, B, C and want to type-orify all these objects into an object of type D. The objects A,B,C are always known but some of the objects are not (may,e., D). Now my naive idea was: `function typeOrify(input): D { const types: D[] = []; for (const a in input) { if (a in types) { continue; } types.push(Object.isFinder ? new FindersSortedLikeObject(input[a], a) : new FindersLikeObject(input[a], a)); } return new TypeOrifyObject(types); } function new FindersSortedLikeObject(input, a): FindersSortedLikeObject { return new FindersSortedLikeObject(input); } My solution is verbose and do not scales well when there are many different types (A, B, C) I could use of: Is there an other possibility to type-orify, i.e. without to add the typedef to the objects? Is there a function TypeOrifyjson or TypeOrifyjsonRegEx similar to the jsonify (here) or itoa (here) function but automatic for the given types? Ps.: Let me know if there is a better title for the question. I couldn't find something better and my english is not good enough to search for something better. A: Is there a function TypeOrifyjson or TypeOrifyjsonRegEx similar to the jsonify (here) or itoa (here) function but automatic for the given types? This is exactly the purpose of TypeScript's type-level string extraction, and will be available in the next release of TypeScript. // All of these types will be of type "FindersLikeObject" type DUnion = "a" | "b" | "c"; type D | JsonType = string; //> "a" |`

in leadership over the past two seasons, and even though he can be a bit too lenient at times with some technical play, he isn't afraid to kick a player out of a game for committing a flagrant foul (see: the D. Rose and Marc Gasol incidents in the 2012 playoffs). While Wall is a gifted passer who isn't afraid to throw the ball in the face of defenders, the Wizards' defense is a concern at the offensive end because they lack perimeter shooters and have been outscored by approximately 2.5 points per 100 possessions in league this season, per NBA.com. They've also been the second-youngest team in the NBA in terms of minutes played per game (27.6). But they do have athleticism, with Wall, Nene and Trevor Ariza among their top defenders. And if they can get their act together on offense, Wall can have an impact. Detroit Pistons: Andre Drummond 2 of 8 Julio Aguilar/Getty Images Detroit has been a little out of sight this season with a 12-11 record, but the team is now led by a rookie starter in Kentavious Caldwell-Pope. Meanwhile, Detroit's defense has been excellent this season. The Pistons are 18th in points allowed (100.8 per 100 possessions), 15th in field goal percentage defense (44.7 percent), seventh in opponent turnover percentage (19.5 percent) and ninth in steals per game (9.8), per NBA.com. They also rank third in effective field goal percentage defense (40.0 percent) and seventh in rebound rate (44.2 percent). Clearly, they've found their footing defensively, and Pistons head coach Joe Dumars has shown that he's willing to stick with what's working. Drummond and Caldwell-Pope figure to be part of the core of the future for the Pistons, but currently, Drummond seems to be the most talented big man on the roster. He leads all rookies in rebounds (10.5 per game) and personal fouls (5.9) as well as field goal percentage (55.9 percent) and steals per game (1.6), per Basketball-Reference.com. With so many minutes to play in his early career, Drummond figures to grow and develop as a player on both ends of the floor. Philadelphia 76ers: Joel Embiid
