Creating a new file When you first launch the program, a blank canvas is created, ready to receive your ideas, as shown in Figure 18-1. You get a blank canvas with tools and panels that enable you to create any type of image, but it doesn't come ready-made. You have to create a new document on which you can add layers of art. A `_document_` is basically the format in which you store information that you want to use in a single file. You can create a new document by simply double-clicking in the blank document window. Figure 18-1: Starting out with Photoshop can be a bit overwhelming. | ---

The Dodge and Burn tools work in similar ways, allowing you to "burn" into an image by filling with black, or "dodge" areas from surrounding colors. The Eraser tool allows you to remove unwanted areas, typically by erasing a color. The Gradient Brush allows you to apply gradients and create a variety of cool effects. The Paint Bucket tool allows you to fill an area with a color. The Pen tool lets you trace a line, and, using the Arrow, Continuous, and Double Arrow tools, make a line that is adjustable. Picking and Lasso tools let you select an area by clicking on it or even an area of a group of pixels. The Picking Tool allows you to select a specific area of the image, and the Lasso Tool is used for freeform drawing of images. Text tools: The Type tool lets you create images that have text. The Character tool lets you create the text. The Replaceable Brush lets you place text anywhere within the image. The Healing Brush tool is used to repair damaged areas in an image. The Smudge Tool is used to smear paint across an image. The Brush tool is used to apply paint or other media. Cellular life-history characteristics of live sporozoites from a species of Toxoplasma cyst. The purpose of this research was to provide a basis for understanding and modeling critical aspects of the regulation and life cycle of the protozoan parasite that causes toxoplasmosis, Toxoplasma gondii. One method involved quantitation of radioactive T. gondii live sporozoites, which offers the potential for characterization of molecules involved in cell invasion. We have previously noted a marked decrease in the number of Toxoplasma live sporozoites released from infected Vero cells after 45-48 hours of culture. To determine if it was possible to facilitate the release of these live sporozoites by reducing cyst growth, we compared the growth of Toxoplasma cysts in Vero cells or KU37 cells. Toxoplasma tachyzoites or bradyzoites were mixed with Vero or KU37 cells, and cysts were allowed to form in vitro. Cysts were then counted and released to medium for the subsequent 7 days. When Toxoplasma tachyzoites were used in the cyst inoculum, Vero cell cysts were significantly reduced compared to KU37 cells, whereas cysts containing bradyzo

OpenAL Absorb Example doxygen generated documentation Generated on Sat May 23 16:43:23 2011 for OpenAL Utils by 1.5.8 The present invention relates to a continuous caster in which molten metal is continuously supplied to a continuous casting mold from a tundish. More particularly, the invention relates to a continuous caster which is adapted to form cast strands (solidified molten metal) of uniform cross section by discharge from the mold, wherein the bottom of the mold can be opened and closed with ease. The prior art continuous caster of this type comprises a continuous casting mold having a hollow portion disposed in a cylinder (a shell and a baffle system), and molten metal (molten aluminum) is supplied to this continuous casting mold by a tundish. More specifically, molten metal is supplied into the hollow portion of the continuous casting mold while simultaneously supplying a cooling medium to the outer surface of the molten metal, thus permitting the surface of the molten metal to solidify gradually. The layer of solidified metal thus formed is gradually discharged from the hollow portion of the continuous
