Dubai (CNN) -- At least two people have died and more than 50 are injured after an explosion at a Gulf petrochemical plant in an industrial zone of the United Arab Emirates, according to local authorities. A Saudi Arabian oil company will take over operations at the plant, Abu Dhabi-based National Petroleum Co. Ltd, said in a statement on its website. The Khazir oil field is one of the world's largest and used mainly to produce gas and condensate, a light oil that is mainly used as a petrochemical fuel. It is located in the southern Abu Dhabi emirate, 90 kilometers (56 miles) from the capital Abu Dhabi. The facility is owned by Najm of the company Sarir and operated by Saudi company Tamin Qatar Petroleum. The explosion was triggered by a worker who inadvertently ignited a barrel of oil, according to the statement from National Petroleum. "This will damage the oil tank, and the oil leak will cause a huge fire," Sheikh Saeed Bin Sultan Al Khalifa, assistant to the supreme council of the UAE government, said on CNN in an interview. Al Khalifa said some toxic substances had also been released into the air. Gas is being pumped into the plant to extinguish the fire and the toxic fumes should not be a problem in the city's air quality management system, he said. Despite this, the company is warning people to take precautions because of the amount of vapors still in the air. Employees are advised to stay inside and windows are closed, he said. National Petroleum and Tamin have requested safe distance between the stricken site and the residential areas surrounding it. On its website, National Petroleum says: "Although there are no immediate concerns for health, all of our employees have been evacuated from the area and we are in contact with authorities." The statement on National Petroleum's website added: "We extend our sincere condolences to the families of the deceased and wish a speedy recovery to those injured." * * For the full copyright and license information, please view the LICENSE * file that was distributed with this source code. */ namespace Predis\Command; / * @link
