the only way to get this is to go into the menu for the track builder, but it is worth it just to see how the editor works and to appreciate how good the in-built environment looks. it's also worth a look to see how you can create your own courses. the track editor allows you to make your own tracks, even ones that you race. you can edit the courses, and the terrain. you can also add your own layers to the maps that you create, with a huge number of extra textures, buildings, and mountains to choose from. it's all highly customizable and has a number of other useful features. anybody can make a track, it really doesn't matter how experienced you are with drone racing. the point of the open beta is to provide us with feedback and to help us develop the track editor. if you don't have a track to share, please send an email to the dev team and one of the modders will create your track for you! the bottom left hand corner of the app displays a graph that shows you the location of all the blue objects in your track. this is where you can add markers, obstacles, lights, buildings, etc. you can also add custom track elements using the inbuilt tools. the controls are well implemented, there is a few bugs in the game, but for the most part it works well. as mentioned above the map packs are expensive, the aircraft are cheap and you cant change them, you can also download more map packs from the website to add to the already existing ones, or if you wanted to add a new track. having said all of that, its a good simulator and is priced well at $9.99, also there is a crack of the game you can download. this is obviously the most important aspect when looking at this game, and its something that i have never come across before. the crack is easy to find, and although is only 4.3mb, it still might be a bit of a pain to install as it will take up 5-10 minutes of your time to install. the crack can be downloaded from here: .
