However, I don't want it to wait for the command to finish before continuing. The following code works fine: def check_connection(): try: subprocess.check_output(["curl", "-V"]) except subprocess.CalledProcessError: return False return True I want to shorten it down to something like this, but it returns False even if the curl command succeeds: def check_connection(): try: subprocess.check_output(["curl", "-V"]) except subprocess.CalledProcessError: return True Is there some way I can do what I want? I know that there are many ways to do this, but I'd like to do it with the builtin methods. A: The problem is that subprocess.check_output waits for the command to complete before returning.
